Forum for European Philosophy

What we do.....
New developments in science and the arts already have well established ways of reaching a public audience. By contrast, thoughtful reflection on contemporary life and culture – philosophical reflection broadly conceived – is far less well supported. The Forum for European Philosophy has gained widespread recognition for its work in this area, developing a distinctive programme of thought-provoking discussions open to the general public.

What you can do.....
The Forum relies on its membership scheme and donations. We are extremely grateful to our supporters, all of whom make our events programme possible. Forum members receive discounted tickets to Forum events. Full members also have voting rights at the Forum's AGM and all our supporters regularly receive programmes and updates.
