

Hellenic Observatory Policy Seminar

‘Greece and the Crisis: Recovery or Decline?’

Dr Yannis Papantoniou

Former Minister of Trade; National Economy; Defence.
President, Centre for Progressive Policy Research

Chair: Professor Kevin Featherstone

Tuesday 24 November 2009
18:00 – 19:30

Thai Theatre, LSE New Academic Building
54, Lincolns Inn Fields
London WC2A 3LJ

This event is free and open to all with no ticket required, entry is on a first come first served basis.

Please follow the link below to the Hellenic Observatory website for further details
http://www.lse.ac.uk/collections/hellenicObservatory/events/Seminars/Seminars_main.htm

LSE Campus Map: http://www2.lse.ac.uk/mapsAndDirections/LSE_CampusMap_web_07.pdf

“The seminar series of the Hellenic Observatory provides a forum of academic and policy research addressed mainly to student and academic audiences within the University of London, but also to the Greek emigrant community in London. Topics covered in the seminar series are mainly related to current economic and foreign affairs issues of Greece and Cyprus, as well as themes on the culture and history of Greece and the wider South-East Europe region. The seminars run fortnightly every second Tuesday during the two teaching terms of the academic year and take place at the building of the European Institute in LSE.”