Dear Prospective Student

We would like to welcome you to our Department and the London School of Economics. The purpose of this letter is to provide you with some important information and advice about the MSc in European Social Policy for the coming academic session.

Please note that this letter does not constitute your official offer of admission. By now, you should have received an offer letter from LSE Graduate Admissions and your place is not guaranteed until you respond to this letter.

Teaching on most courses begins on Monday 3rd October 2011, but the School and the Department arrange a variety of introductory activities at the end of the preceding week. Some sessions are for all new students in the Department, whilst others are for those on specific programmes.

- Programme structure and course option information
- LSE new arrivals support
- Induction week programme
- Preliminary recommended reading lists
