New Academic Building, LSE

INTRODUCTION

We are delighted to welcome you to the 9th Biennial Hellenic Observatory PhD Symposium on Contemporary Greece and Cyprus. Over the years, the Symposium has attracted PhD students from many different countries, facilitating their contact and collaboration with their peers. We have also been very grateful to the many academics who have given their time to chair the panels at the Symposium.

The aim of the HO Symposium is to promote the research of PhD students who have an interest in Greece and Cyprus and by presenting their work in front of experienced scholars and academics to allow them to share and exchange ideas and to gain valuable feedback. We know from many past participants how much they have appreciated the academic opportunity. Moreover, the range of topics covered on contemporary Greece and Cyprus over the years has been tremendous. In the current climate, there is even more need to encourage research on both countries.

We are extremely grateful to the A.G. Leventis Foundation, for supporting the Symposium once again. The provision of travel grants to our student participants has been crucial to bringing us all together, so we can reap the benefits of our exchange.

The PhD Symposium has become one of the most important international meetings for PhD students working on contemporary Greece and Cyprus in the social sciences and we are delighted to welcome students from all over the world.

Professor Kevin Featherstone
Hellenic Observatory Director; Eleftherios Venizelos Professor of Contemporary Greek Studies & Professor of European Politics, European Institute, LSE

ORGANISER

The Hellenic Observatory (HO) was set up in October 1996. Its aim is to promote the study of contemporary Greece & Cyprus via research, research training, and a series of public events. The emphasis is on cross-disciplinary and comparative work. The main disciplines covered are: economics and economic geography; political science and international relations. The HO holds regular seminars open to the public on issues related to contemporary Greece & Cyprus, taking place fortnightly during term time. In addition, it hosts special public lectures with leading public figures from Greece & Cyprus. The HO also hosts conferences and workshops, both at the LSE and in Greece. Since 2002, over 30,000 guests have attended its public events.

SUPPORTED BY

The A. G. Leventis Foundation was established in 1979 to fulfil the wishes of the late Anastasios Leventis. In Cyprus, Greece and wider south-eastern Europe, the Foundation's main emphasis has been on the restoration of a number of monuments of various periods and on support for education and culture. Elsewhere in Europe, and further afield, there has again been a concentration on education, with a particular focus on the communities of the Greek diaspora. An international programme of support for Greek studies has been developed over the years in parallel with efforts to study and enhance the presentation of Cypriot antiquities in museums around the world. The Foundation has active international programmes on environmental conservation and sustainable agriculture, with emphasis on developing countries.

PLENARY SESSION 1

"How to write a PhD on Greece"

Kevin Featherstone is Eleftherios Venizelos Professor in Contemporary Greek Studies and Professor in European Politics. He is the Director of the Hellenic Observatory and Co-Chair of LSEE: Research on South-East Europe within the European Institute, LSE. He has held visiting positions at the University of Minnesota; New York University; and Harvard University. Before LSE, he held academic posts at the universities of Stirling and Bradford. In 2009-10 he served on an advisory committee to Prime Minister George Papandreou for the reform of the Greek government. He was the first foreign member of the National Council for Research and Technology (ESET) in Greece, serving from 2010-2013. He is Vice-Chair of the Academic Council of 'Atomium Culture', Brussels, a not-for-profit promoting collaboration within the European Research Area. In 2013 he was made 'Commander: Order of the Phoenix' by the President of the Hellenic Republic. In 2014, the European Parliament selected one of his books (co-authored with Kenneth Dyson) as one of its '100 Books on Europe to Remember'. He has contributed regularly to 'Kathimerini'.

PLENARY SESSION 1

"How to write a PhD on Greece"

This session will discuss both generic issues of developing, designing, and writing a PhD, as well as the specific challenges of writing a PhD thesis on Greece (or Cyprus). It will offer guidance to those starting a PhD and to those about to finish writing a PhD thesis.

Topics to be covered will include:

- What is a research 'puzzle'?
- Developing your research question (and hypotheses).
- -Why? What? How? questions
- The challenges of single country or comparative case studies.
- Framing your questions and evidence.
- -What's new? Specifying your contribution.
- Who would disagree? Positioning yourself in scholarly debates.
- Finding and using source material.
- -How to get published.
- How to apply for PhD places and scholarships.

Professor Featherstone has the experience of supervising over 35 PhD candidates; being responsible for PhD admissions in the LSE's European Institute, and having examined numerous PhD theses."

PLENARY SESSION 2

"Five things we don't know about the Economic Crisis in Greece"

SPEAKER: Professor Dimitris Papadimitriou

He has previously held visiting posts at Princeton University, the London School of Economics and Yale University. He has written extensively on the European Union's political economy and on Greek politics and public policy. His last book, Prime Ministers in Greece: The Paradox of Power (with Kevin Featherstone) was published by Oxford University Press in 2015. He is a Research Associate in the Hellenic Observatory.

DISCUSSANT: Professor George Pagoulatos

George Pagoulatos is Professor of European Politics and Economy at the Athens University of Economics and Business (AUEB), Visiting Professor at the College of Europe in Bruges & a Research Associate in the Hellenic Observatory. He is Vice President of the Athens-based Hellenic Foundation for European and Foreign Policy (ELIAMEP) and sits on the Governing Boards of the Brussels-based European Policy Centre (EPC). His research focuses on the EMU and the EU, Greece and Southern Europe, political economy of finance, political economy of reform. Author of several books and many articles, he is a regular columnist in the Sunday edition of the main Greek centrist newspaper Kathimerini since 2007.

PLENARY SESSION 2

"Five things we don't know about the Economic Crisis in Greece"

Few events in recent European history have attracted greater media interest and scholarly attention than the crisis that engulfed Greece over the past decade. But how well understood is Greece's implosion and what is left to discover? It has often been argued that the crisis was not simply an economic one; its roots and implications can be located deep in the political, cultural and social fabric of Greece as well as in the wider architecture of the Eurozone and the prevailing paradigm of global financial capitalism. Given its protracted nature and multi-disciplinary manifestations, the understanding of the Greek crisis has become a formidable scholarly endeavour, both from an empirical and theoretical/normative perceptive. This lecture will offer a tour d'horizon of the existing literature, seeking to identify gaps in our current knowledge and highlight fertile ground for the development of new research agendas that place Greece beyond an exceptionalist frame and onto debates of wider comparative and theoretical value.
